THE PRINCETON PRIZE IN RACE RELATIONS

Princeton University is sponsoring an awards program to identify and commend high school students who are working to increase understanding and mutual respect among all races – the Princeton Prize in Race Relations.

If you are a high school student in the Los Angeles area involved in an activity that is helping to improve race relations, broadly defined, in your school or community, the Princeton Prize wants to hear from you.

If you know a high school student who is helping to improve race relations, please encourage him or her to apply.

Applications must be postmarked by January 31, 2006. Prizes – including a cash award of up to $1,000 – will be awarded in the spring of 2006.

Applications and additional information are available online at www.princeton.edu/PrincetonPrize, or call 1.800.742.1036. You may also contact the co-chairs of the Princeton Prize in Race Relations/Los Angeles: Chuck Cummings, ccpu80@pacbell.net; and Tina Treadwell, tinatreadwell@mac.com.

Princeton and its alumni recognize that the issue of race relations continues to be one of the most urgent and important challenges facing our country. With this Prize, Princeton University is reaching beyond its campus to recognize the efforts of America's next generation of leaders. If you share the goal of the Princeton Prize – to promote harmony, understanding and respect among people of different races – you are strongly encouraged to apply.
